Four Generations in the Workplace

Whether your goal is to help employees understand each other by improving their day-to-day communications or to increase your own success with a wider variety of clients, this session will demonstrate the importance of connecting with the four generations working side-by-side in today's changing workplace.

Tuesday, June 30, 2009
10:30am – 11:30am Eastern
9:30am – 10:30am Central
8:30am – 9:30 am Mountain
7:30am – 8:30am Pacific

Four Generations in Your Client Base

This program will define the four generations and discuss the various ways in which a consultant or vendor can enhance their services for their clientele while being aware of age-related concerns.

Monday, July 20, 2009
1:00pm – 2:00pm Eastern
12:00pm – 1:00pm Central
11:00am – 12:00pm Mountain
10:00am – 11:00am Pacific

Four Generations in Style

Helping our one-on-one clients and/or program attendees understand what 'age appropriate' dressing is for them while having their own personal style can be tricky, especially if you and your clients are of different generations. This session will be about current styles and who can best wear them for their workplace and/or lifestyle.

Monday, August 10, 2009
1:00pm – 2:00pm Eastern
12:00pm – 1:00pm Central
11:00am – 12:00pm Mountain
10:00am – 11:00am Pacific

Linda Thomas (representing the Baby Boomers and Traditionalists) and Krista Estes, Linda's summer intern (representing the Gen Y and Gen X) have planned 3 informative sessions to help you delve into a greater understanding of who the other generations are outside of your own. All three of these seminars will help you see new ways of interacting with your clients, your service providers and what messages the current styles are communicating to each generation.
